

succeed? No, the necessity for success does not follow logically from the fact that success would be beneficial. Another example: Does it make sense to think: "Because something is bad, I can't stand it"?

Follow-up question: If my belief is illogical, what rational/helpful belief would make more sense logically?